FAR-REACHING DECISION BY FED-ERAL JUDGE LOCKE, OF FLORIDA.

Powerful Influences Working to Secure the Recall of General Weyler -Attempt to Starve Insurgents.

HAVANA, Jan. 18 .- The gunboats Centinela and Relampago left Manzanillo on the night of Jan. 16 with the object of going up the river Cauto to Fort Guamo, in compliance with the orders of General Bosch. At 10 o'clock on the morning of Jan. 17 both gunboats were near Mango landing when an explosion of a torpedo, which had been well placed in the river, sunk the Relampago. Those of the crew who survived swam towards shore, but were fired on from the banks. At this critical moment a boat was launched from the Centinela, which rescued the men in the water. In view of the fact that the commander of the Centinela and nearly all of the crews of both gunboats had been seriously wounded, the expedition had to return.

Senor Martinez, of the Relampago, was seriously wounded in the explosion, as well as Assistant Engineer Jacobi Duis, the gunner, Francisco Martinez, and the seamen Vicente Gener, Juan Cambello and Felix Diaz, while Paymaster Antero, Chief Officer Masquero, Engineer Pazadela and also the pilot and four others were slightly wounded. Six of the officers and crew were killed outright and all of the rest received wounds of more or less severity. On the gunboat Centinela the commander, Senor Puerta, was seriously wounded, while of the crew one was killed and Corporal Manuel Cabans, the pilot, Duran, Assistant Engineer Martinez and six of the crew were

This was sustained by Judge Dixon began to reach Youngs's head. Then | Locke and the district attorney was given ten days in which to file an amended libel. The point was one that had never been raised before.

Effect of the Decision. WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 .- The officials of the Department of Justice are unwilling to discuss Judge Locke's decision beyond the statement that if the judge, at the final hearing, sustains to-day's decision an appeal will likely be taken to the United States Court of Appeals at New Orleans and if an adverse decision is rendered there an appeal will be taken to the United States Supreme Court. As understood here, Judge Locke's decision is to the effect that ognized by the United States they are not ute under which the libel was brought. Alstatutes are placed under the title "Neutrality," that word does not appear in the act itself. The original act was passed in 1794 and was entitled, "An Act in Addition to the Act for the Punishment of Ceract was revised and the words "Foreign prince, state, colony, district or people were inserted, with a view to making it apply to the South American insurrection then in progress, but the question of whether, in fact, these designations properly apply to the Cuban insurgents or others in a like situation, never before has been decided by the courts. Should Judge Locke's decision be sustained by the court of last resort it would appear that every inhibition in the act against fitting out hostile expeditions of every character against a foreign state with wlom the United Major Smith was editor of the Terre Haute States are at peace becomes of no effect, These inhibitions are against enlistment acceptance of commissions to serve a forhim to give up the management of his elgn state, people, etc., and against the Rockville paper, Mr. Smith offered him arming and fitting out of naval expeditions, and declares that all such vessels, together with their cargoes, etc., shall be forfeited to the United States. The question decided by Judge Locke, therefore, is of the highest importance, as, if it is sustained, every act restraining the fitting out of expeditions to aid the Cuban insurgents For the last four or five years he was in their struggle against Spanish authority becomes inoperative.

ing a severe defeat on the army of insurgents under Maximo Gomez, which is understood to be steadily advancing on Havana from the east. Therefore, it is thought probable that Weyler will gather together all the forces he can dispose of without weakening to a dangerous extent the garrisons of the large towns and will push forward into the provinces of Santa Clara and occupy positions calculated to compel General Gomez to fight a pitched

In connection with reports of the ap-proaching recall of General Weyler, it is interesting to note the manner in which he received the news of the death of Antonio Maceo, the circumstances of which have only just leaked out from the palace. At first Weyler would not believe the re-port, and announced his intention of paying no attention to it until he received official confirmation. This was brought to him while he was at the breakfast table, whereupon General Weyler arose from his seat, and, raising his eyes heavenward, exclaimed, "Me buena estrella aun no ha eclipsado." (My good star, fortune, is not yet eclipsed.) This happened at a time when, as well known to the captain gen-eral's most intimate friends, he was disposed to resign.
Outside assistance is what the insurgents stand badly in need of at present, and without it, it is concluded, they will be reduced to accept the terms of Spain, although this may turn out to be but a temporary arrangement, which will be followed by another and more successful insurrec-tion in due course of time. In any case, everything depends on the friends of the insurgents in the United States. If they do not exert themselves promptly and effectively in the very that future, the dream of independence for Cuba may pass away for the present. The turning point of the insurrection, it is believed here, has been It is still insisted in Havana that Maximo Gomez recently wrote to the New York Junto informing it that he must have additional supplies of arms and ammuni-tion shortly or else the insurrection would "die of consumption," but this is not credited in insurgent circles; and it is emphatically denied that he has notified the Junto that the insurgents who are under arms are prepared to accept autonomy. As previously stated in these dispatches, a peace party does exist among the insurgents; this party, however, is in the minority at present. The insurgents admit that some active demonstration on their part will be absolutely necessary in the near future if they are to retain the sympathy aroused for them in the United States, and it is for this purpose that Maximo Gomez was or-dered to advance westward and has finally consented to do so, much against his will, as he is fully alive to the difficulties of A friend of the insurgents, who is usually very well informed, was that to remark to-day that he did not believe that the main body of the insurgents would advance further westward than the city of Colon, in the western part of the province of Ma-tanzas, as Gomez would be taking too nuch risk in so doing with the resources at his command. Nevertheless, the gentleman quoted added it would, perhaps, be best for him to do so in any case, as it would tend to raise the drooping spirits of the insurgents, who, in addition to Maceo, have lost a number of other important eaders. In these conditions a really energetic general with 30,000 or 40,000 men inder his command might be able to make short work of the insurrection; but Weyler is not of the class of men who accomplish anything brilliantly.

STARVING THE INSURGENTS. Another Edict by Weyler That Is Intended to Cut Off Supplies.

HAVANNA. Jan. 18 .- Captain General Weyler has issued a circular amplifying Article 2 of his edict of Jan. 1. It says that the Spanish authorities must not permit groceries, dry goods or medicines to leave a town unless the remitters of each locality guarantee the loyalty and standing of the purchasers and vouch for their actual need of the goods. The military authorities are required to sign each invoice This step has been taken to still further do away with the possibility of the insurgents being able to purchase supplies in the towns, and there is no denying that the work of starving the insurgents into and success than the work of subduing them by force of arms and they are now feeling the effects of the wholesale destruction of plantations, etc., to a degree which was not anticipated at an earlier

It is officially stated that on Saturday last a train running from Regla to Guan-abacoa, both places being close to this city, was held up at 10:30 p. m., by Plateados, who carried off ten officers who were returning from a pleasure trip and a number of passengers. They were afterwards liberated. One native was killed. Aguir, of the artillery, and General Barranguer of the engineers, and is said to have execeeded the results expected.

The Washington union, therefore, requested the international union officials to ask Senator Sherman to recognize union labor, and the further request was made that the Ohio delegates also take up the matter. The convention ordered that the letter from Washington union be made public, and voted to order petitions prepared by the representatives of the Ohlo unions and international union, which will be sent to the Ohio representatives in Congress. The union also decided to bring the grievance directly before the Ohio senator.

General Packard Makes an Argument Before the House Committee

in Charge of It. At a long session of the Senate committee on affairs of the city of Indianapol's yesterday afternoon a partial presentation was made of the various interests involved in the bill amending the act for the incorporation of street railroads. Chairman New and Messrs. Hugg, Hawkins, Gostlin, Watson and Rinear were present, Senator Humphreys being absent on account of a death in his family. The committee met in the rooms of the State Board of Agriculture. Mayor Taggart, City Attorney Curtis and John W. Kern, associate counsel in the matter, were there to present the and all candidates will go before the Leg- city's side of the question, while J. J. To a reporter he said help the committee reach a just and fair conclusion. Last week Mr. Mason wrote General Harrison a note, informing him President-elect. He said Governor Bradley of the conditions and asking him to appear sider the case until after his return from Washington the last of the present week, probably about Friday. Mr. Winter seid there was no necessity for haste, as the public interests would not be injured by a week's delay. The very fact that the bill is

He spoke of the course the bill must pursue, how it must first pass the Senate, go to a House committee, and finally pass that body. Considering all these facts it was his personal impression there should be no serious delay. Mr. Gostlin moved a postponement until next Monday, stating that he had some constituents who were anxious to be heard but were not present. Mr. Hugg said while he was willing to give the company every opportunity to present its case, he believed something ought to be done at once. He appreciated the fact that the company and the committee should have the benefit of General Harrison's views. Mr. Hawkins said inasmuch as the committee would doubtless have to hold more than one session, something should be done without postponement. He had no desire to cut off from the company the benefit of General Harrison's appearance, but thought they ought to do something immediately. Mr. New said that was the idea he had in view. but that as the time was limited it was necessary to proceed with all possible haste. The committee retired for a short private conference. Mr. New then announced the committee had decided that it must proceed, but that its report would not be made until Tuesday of next week, after General

Harrison and Mr. Miller had had an oppor-

sentatives of the city make the first argu-ment, when Mr. Kern sharply declared the city had not asked to be heard, but was iam Jennings Bryan, en route to Texas on | there to hear what the company had to say, when it might possibly desire to reply. For the benefit of those members of the committee not residents of Indianapolis, Mr. Winter said it might be well for him to review the controversies between the City Street-railroad Company and the Citizens company, which he was there to represent. The first question to be considered, he said, was whether there should be any legislation at all at this time. He said that while the bill was intended to effect the Citizens' Company alone it was general in terms and in the future might effect many companies. In its present operation if would effect only the Citizens' Company but in the future it will apply to every street-railroad company in Indiana. He questioned the propriety of a bill so sweeping, when in point of fact it was intended to effect only one company. He denied that a bill local in its bearings could not be passed, notwithstanding the constitutional provision that all bills must be general He said, assuming the purpose of the bill was to effect the Citizens' Company alone, there was no occasion to pass it, as it is premature. The rights of the company, he said, he took it for granted every one would agree did not expire until Jan. 18, 1901. In 1899, he said, there is to be another session of the Legislature. He did not intend to intimate that this Legislature is not competent, but the Legislature of 1899 will act at a time nearer the time necessary for action, when the views of the citizens of In-
